EXPLANATION OF REFERENCES

At the end of the treatment of each descendant in this book, the reader will notice the following:

References:

followed by several numbers. These numbers refer to the material consulted during the research process in which information about that descendant and his/her family was found. In many instances other references were consulted, but only those in which the data was first discovered have been mentioned, except where vital records sources were researched for confirmation purposes.

The references are identified by the numbers given and are cited by title, author, etc., on pages 107 through 121.

THE PEARSON BAKERY

John Pearson & Sons

The history of the Pearson bakery begins with the establishment of the Pearson family in America about 1643. The progenitor of the family was John Pearson, who was born about 1616 in England, and came to Ipswich, Massachusetts, at the age of 30. He is traditionally thought to have been a quiet, gentle man. He remained in Ipswich a very short time before moving to Rowley, Massachusetts.

Capt. Ezekiel Rogers founded the Town of Rowley in 1639 when he came with a company of about twenty families from Hull, England, on the ship, "John." Before lots in Rowley could be assigned and recorded, sixteen additional families arrived. John Pearson and his family were among these sixteen families. He lived in that part of Rowley that is now Georgetown.

It is thought that he went to Rowley because he felt the Mill River, a branch of the Rowley River, offered a better location for a mill dam. He was a carpenter and a miller, experienced in the art of dressing cloth; bringing machinery for a mill and cedar posts for the mill dam from England. After he established his mill, finishing of cloth spun in homes was done there and a much better material resulted. According to extant ledgers, 1672-1688, John Pearson's mill had accounts for dressing cloth with 103 of the 104 Rowley families.

During the next century, many mills were established along the tidal waters of Essex County, the majority of them controlled by his sons and grandsons.

Among the sons of John Pearson and his wife, Dorcus, was Jeremiah, a carpenter, miller, and farmer. He built a grist mill in Rowley, which he operated until 1708. Jeremiah Pearson moved to Newbury, Massachusetts, with his wife, Priscilla (Hazen), in 1710, buying a house and grist mill on Little River in Oldtown Parish from John Short.

Jeremiah Pearson's son, John, was a captain during the French and Indian War. He spent some years in Connecticut where he married Elizabeth Mix, before settling back in Newbury. He owned the old Short mill and later built an additional mill.

Silas Pearson inherited the mills from his father, John, to which he added several farms in Newbury, as well as holdings in Maine and New Hampshire. His wife was Judith Atkinson. Silas Pearson was a Revolutionary War patriot and three of his sons served during the war.

One of these sons was Theodore, who was a corporal in Capt. Nowell's company, being stationed at Plum Island for the defence of the seacoast in 1776. During 1777, he was a sargent in Capt. Jenkins company under General Gates in the Northern Department some 240 miles from Newbury. After the war, he married Sarah Wyatt of Newbury.

Theodore Pearson established a home bakery in Newburyport, Massachusetts. It was located on Lime Street, but in 1792 it was moved to Water Street and became the first commercial bakery in Newburyport. He made a Pilot bread, a cracker made of flour, water, lard and salt and known as "hard-tack." It was kneaded by hand, rolled out, individually shaped and baked in a charcoal oven.

Two of his sons, Theodore, Jr. and John, followed him into the baking business. Until the fire of 1811, the sons' bakery was located on Centre Street. By 1814 John had moved with his young family to Portsmouth, New Hampshire; while Theodore, Jr. had relocated to Essex Street, where he evidently stayed until his death in 1838.

John Pearson was very successful in Portsmouth. The city was a large commercial center and sailing ships, whalers and sealers created a large demand for his hardtack bisquit. Hoping for a less hectic life, he moved to Exeter, New Hampshire, after 1830, and later to Portland, Maine. The family's stay in Portland was unhappy because of Mr. Pearson's outspoken religious views. He was also an abolitionist and advocated temperance, views not shared by many people at that time.

During the 1840s, the family returned to Newburyport. John Pearson opened a bakery at 65 Water Street and either he or his sons, Harris and Theodore, operated it until his death.

In addition to the Water Street establishment, Harris and Theodore Pearson had a bakery at 18 Lime Street for several years. In 1858, the brothers added another at 5 Essex Street. Apparently Harris was the lead businessman of the venture and Theodore worked mainly out of the Essex Street building. In 1864, the Pearsons first established themselves at the Essex Wharf, 126 Merrimac Street. The wharf soon became known as Pearson's Wharf.

In 1871 a third brother, Rev. John Pearson, had entered into business, opening a bakery at 97 Merrimac Street. Rev. Pearson was an Adventist minister, having had a pastorate in Rochester, New York, for three years before coming to Newburyport in 1848 to organize the Second Advent Church, located at Essex and State Streets and later on Charter Street.

John Pearson purchased the bakery of his brother, Harris, on Pearson's Wharf and established John Pearson & Sons bakery. The business was sold to the New York Bisquit Company in 1900, and was subsequently absorbed by the National Bisquit Company.

Theodore Pearson moved to Madison, New Hampshire. Harris Pearson retired to West Newbury, Massachusetts, but several years later opened a bakery with his son, Alfred. This business was sold to the United States Bisquit Company, and also absorbed by the National Bisquit Company.

The National Bisquit Company is known as Nabisco Brands, Inc., or RJR Nabisco.

JOHN PEARSON OF ROWLEY, MASSACHUSETTS, IN 1643

JOHN PEARSON OF ROWLEY, MASSACHUSETTS

John Pearson was born about 1616 in England. He came to Rowley in 1643. His wife was Dorcus _____, who apparently came with him from England.

Captain Ezekiel Rogers founded the Town of Rowley in 1639 when he came with a company of about twenty families, sailing from Hull, England, on the ship, "John." Before lots could be recorded, sixteen additional families had come to Rowley. John Pearson and his family were among these sixteen families. He lived in that part of Rowley that is now Georgetown. He took the Oath of Freeman 26 May 1647.

The name is often spelled Pierson or Peirson and Person on early Essex County, Massachusetts, records.

John Pearson was first in Ipswich, and was about 30 years old. He is traditionally thought to have been a quiet, gentle man. Perhaps he was a member of the Northamptonshire Pearson family, but this has not been definitely established. Some references give his English home as the Parish of Essex, while others maintain he came to England from Picardy, France.

He remained in Ipswich a very short time before relocating in Rowley. It is thought perhaps he went to Rowley because he felt the Mill River there offered a better location for a mill dam. He was a carpenter and a miller, experienced in the art of dressing cloth. He brought machinery for a mill and cedar posts for the mill dam from England.

The Mill River, where John Pearson established his dam, was a branch of the Rowley River and was near Philip Nelson's grist mill. After he established his mill, finishing of cloth spun in the homes was done there and a much better material resulted. According to extant ledgers (1672-1688), John Pearson's mill had accounts for dressing cloth with 103 of the 104 Rowley families.

John Pearson leased the Nelson grist mill in 1654.

During the century following, many mills were established along the tidal waters of Essex County, the majority of them controlled by his sons and grandsons.

His business acumen was recognized by his neighbors, and John Pearson was chosen to represent the town at many sessions of the General Court, beginning in 1678. He also served many times as Selectman and was ordained a deacon of his church 24 October 1686.

John Pearson died 22 December 1693 in Rowley (E.P. 20985), at about 80 years of age. His wife died in Rowley 12 January 1702/3.

The children of John and Dorcus (_____) Pearson, born in Rowley:

1. Mary, born 26 : 3 mo. : 1643, died young.
2. John, born 27 : 10 mo. : 1644, married Mary Pickard.
3. Elizabeth, born 17 : 8 mo. : 1646, married, first, John Hopkinson; second, Daniel Wood.
4. Samuel, born 29 : 5 mo. 1648, married, first, Mary Poore; second, Dorcus Johnson; third, Rebecca _____.
5. Dorcus, born 25 : 2 mo. : 1650, married, first, John Eaton; second, Abraham Bryant.
6. Mary, born 17 : 12 mo. : 1651, married Samuel Palmer.
7. Jeremiah, born 25 : 8 mo. : 1653, married Priscilla Hazen.
8. Sarah, born 3 : 3 mo. : 1655, buried 10 : 8 mo. : 1655 in Rowley.

9. Joseph, born 21 August 1656, killed by Indians 25 August 1675, near Hatfield, Massachusetts.

Joseph-2 Pearson might have been the most promising of John Pearson's sons. His life, and probably his career in the family business, were cut short by the Indian wars. A member of the company known as the "Flower of Essex," he was killed at the Battle of Bloody Brook, when 700 Indians attacked 100 colonists and killed 75 of them.

10. Benjamin, born 6 : 2 mo. : 1658, married Hannah Thurston.
11. Phebe, born 13 April 1660, married Timothy Harris.
12. Stephen, born about 1663, married Mary French.
13. Sarah, born 6 May 1666, buried 16 : 11 mo. : 1666 in Rowley.

Elizabeth Pearson, daughter of John and Dorcus (_____) Pearson, was born 17 : 8 mo. : 1646 in Rowley. She married, first, John Hopkinson 8 June 1670 in Rowley. He was born 7 : 11 mo. : 1646 in Rowley, son of Michael (or Mighill) and Ann (_____) Hopkinson.

After John Hopkinson's death about 1704 (E.P. 13910), Elizabeth (Pearson) Hopkinson married, second, Deacon Daniel Wood 16 November 1715 in Rowley. He was probably the son of Thomas and Ann (_____) Wood, and had previously been married to Sarah Andrews, who had died 23 September 1714 in Boxford, aged 57 years. Sarah Andrews was born about 1658, daughter of Robert and Grace (_____) Andrews; and they had married about 1674. Daniel Wood died before 20 April 1719 (E.P. 30247).

The children of John and Elizabeth (Pearson) Hopkinson, born in Rowley:

21. John Hopkinson, born 9 November 1673, buried 23 November 1674 in Rowley.
22. Dorcus Hopkinson, born 18 : 12 mo. : 1676, married John Spofford 15 February 1699/1700 in Rowley.
23. Jeremiah Hopkinson, born 23 December 1678, married, first, Elizabeth Hunt 9 June 1705 at Concord (recorded in Rowley); second, Margaret (Tenney) Barker 20 May 1728 in Rowley; third, Martha (Smith) Woodbury 11 January 1742 in Rowley.
24. Elizabeth Hopkinson, born 5 August 1683, married Daniel Jewett 25 February 1700/1 in Rowley.
25. Ann Hopkinson, born 3 March 1687, married Jonathon Jewett 28 April 1707 in Rowley.
26. John Hopkinson, born 30 May 1692, married Mary Wheeler 12 February 1712/3 in Rowley.

Samuel Pearson, son of John and Dorcus (_____) Pearson, was born 29 : 5 mo. : 1648 in Rowley. He lived in Haverhill until his home was burned by the Indians sometime between 1674 and 1677, when he removed to Newbury.

He married, first, Mary Poore 6 December 1670 in Newbury. She was born 21 March 1650 in Newbury, daughter of Samuel and Rebecca (?Church) Poore. She died 27 October 1671 in Haverhill, following the birth of her daughter, Mercy.

Samuel Pearson married, second, Dorcus Johnson 16 April 1672 in Haverhill. She was probably born in Hampton, N.H., daughter of Edmund and Mary (_____) Johnson.

Samuel Pearson married, third, Rebecca _____. He died 4 December 1721 in Lyme.

Samuel Pearson's will, dated 3 March 1720/1 at Lyme, Connecticut, was presented for probate at New London 1 January 1721/2. He names his sons: Samuel, Stephen, Peter and John (asking Peter to care and maintain his brother, John, "as long as he doth live with suitable maintenance as a Christian ought to be maintained, who by providence of God, is not capable to take ye care of himself), and his daughters: Mary "at Newbury," Elizabeth Huntley and Sarah Watrous, as well as his widow, Rebecca.

The child of Samuel and Mary (Poore) Pearson:

27. Mercy, born 27 October 1671 in Haverhill, baptized 10 December 1671 in Rowley; married James Thurston.

The children of Samuel and Dorcus (Johnson) Pearson:
